Broadband Internet Survey

The 14 Forward Foundation of Killen and surrounding communities is asking businesses across Bell, Coryell, and Lampasas Counties to provide data on their internet services. The survey will identify gaps in service and indicate where internet speed needs to be increased. The data will be used to improve the connectivity between important regional assets.

"It is critically important that our hospitals, education institutions, government and employment centers be able to communicate with one another. Those communities that do not, will find themselves at a competitive disadvantage for the jobs, investment and technology of the future," explains John Crutchfield, President of the Greater Killeen Chamber of Commerce. The survey results will be combined to form a visual representation of the regional broadband network. The more data provided, the more accurate the representation. Increased community participation will provide the data to identify how and where communities use their American Rescue Plan funding to increase internet services.

Bell County Judge David Blackburn states, "Focusing on regional businesses, during this initial phase of planning, should lay the groundwork to provide more reliable and affordable high-speed internet services to the home."

Businesses and households in these counties are asked to fill out the short survey on a computer or laptop at bit.ly/CenTexInternet.
