State Budget Certified

Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar today announced his certification of Senate Bill 1, the general appropriations act that was approved by both houses during the recently gavelled regular session of the 87th Texas Legislature. The bill now heads to the desk of Gov. Greg Abbott.

SB 1 appropriates $248.6 billion in total spending for the state's budget during the 2022-23 biennium. It is certified based on the most recent total revenue projection released in May, which included an upward revision of $3.1 billion in General Revenue-Related funds after a decline in COVID-19 cases contributed to a further opening of the Texas economy, and substantive federal action on relief funding.

Hegar said the pandemic makes it impossible for anyone to predict with complete accuracy how the economy will unfold through the next budget cycle, which ends Aug. 31, 2023.

"As the extreme shifts in economic conditions we've experienced in the last 15 months show, we still do not fully understand exactly what will happen with the pandemic's long-term effects on businesses, workplace practices, employee availability and consumer behavior," Hegar said. "But what we can do, and will do, is carefully track what's going on and keep everyone informed as we collect and analyze information."
