

The Weather

The High yesterday 51° The Low this morning 36°
A 7-8 mph NE wind at daybreak made it feel pretty cool in Central Texas.

Today: Rain is very likely today, with the chance set at 80%. The day will be uncomfortable at best, probably not getting above 41° and that with enough NE wind to make it downright cold.

Tonight: A 20% chance of rain before midnight, then the clouds are thought to be dissipating a bit. The low should get down to about 34° the N-NE wind being thankfully very light and shifting a little to W-NW after midnight.

Wednesday: Mostly sunny with a high of around 61° and west wind 5-15 and gusting to 20. Overnight it will get back down to 39° as a second norther comes in.

Rest of the week: Thursday is going to cloud up with a high about 56° and easterly wind. Overnight a 40% rain chance shows up again. That rain chance increases to 50% on Friday and Friday night with temps in the 50s.

Saturday looks like a 40% rain chance and up to as much as 70° in the afternoon, and the clouds should clear up for the night and all the way through Sunday and Monday.

The Snow Moon?

The stargazers should have all been out early this morning to see the biggest moon of all, the Super Snow Moon! It's a natural phenomenon where the moon seems to be lined up in its orbit in such a way that it is closest to earth, and therefore a little bigger than at other times. This time around, it's billed as the biggest until 2026. The "Snow" nickname is simply thrown in there because of the time of year when many of us earthlings are getting the white stuff. The moon was supposed to be closest to earth at about 8am this morning, but it should still look pretty big tonight. The only problem...we may not be able to see it if, as expected, there is a lot of cloud cover.

The Week

It's back to work and back to school today after a nice 3 day weekend for President's Day.

It's busy at LHS, with Softball, Soccer and clinics for both Cheer and Mascots.

National FFA Week continues through the week with, not only activity at school and around town, there are several young people getting ready for stock shows around the state.

NATIONAL FFA WEEK | FEB. 16-23, 2019

His teammates did a heck of a job at the plate yesterday putting nine hits on the board. No time was wasted as the boys started to momentum of the game by scoring in the first inning. Waldrip, Keagan Richardson, and Elijah Stanly all had multiple hits throughout the game. Bobby Millican managed to get ahold of one and send it over the fence. On top of all those hits the Badger Boys had zero errors. The boys ended 11-0
