The Weather

The high yesterday 71° This morning's low 62°

Lampasas County will be under a wind advisory from 5pm today until 10am tomorrow

Today: Look for cloudy skies, with a high near 80°. A cold front will enter the northwest counties late this afternoon, and will make its way through the region during the evening and night hours. There is a 40% chance of showers and storms along and ahead of the front with some possibly being severe. The main concern for any severe storms will be large hail, with a lesser damaging wind threat. A tornado or two may also be possible. Behind the front, sub-severe storms are expected to linger into Friday morning. Wind will be S-SW today at 15-20 mph with possible gusts of 30 mph.

Tonight: Look for increasing clouds, and the low will get down to about 38° overnight with a 50% chance of showers and storms. The wind will be gusty from the S-SW near 15-25 mph gusting to 35 mph, then it will shift N overnight.

Friday: Mostly cloudy with a high temperature near 54° and a 30% chance of precipitation in the morning. Wind will be N at 15-20 mph with possible gusts of 30 mph.

Friday Night: Look for mostly cloudy skies and a low near 37°. Wind will be N-NE near 10-15 mph with gusts of 20 mph.

Saturday: Cloudy with the high temperature near 54° and wind will be E-NE at 5-10 mph with gusts as high as 20 mph.

Saturday Night: Mostly cloudy skies and a low near 35° Wind will be E-NE at 5-10 mph.

Student EKG's Offered at Lampasas Schools

Lampasas ISD is partnering with the Cody Stephens Foundation to provide EKG's and raise awareness about sudden cardiac arrest (SCA). EKG's can detect heart problems that may be missed during a standard physical.

The Cody Stephens Foundation will be on the Middle School and High School campuses March 21st to provide EKG's to students in the 6th-12th grade. The EKG's are interpreted via telemedicine by licensed cardiologists and results are returned to the school within 3 business days. The cost of EKG's will be $25.

Forms must be turned in by March 20th for the EKG.

Texas Secretary of State Confirmed.

Yesterday, the Texas Senate confirmed Jane Nelson to serve as the 115th Texas Secretary of State. Following the confirmation vote on the Senate floor, Secretary Nelson issued the following statement:

"To my former Senate colleagues: thank you for your support and your confidence in me to serve in the vital role of Texas Secretary of State. I will work to safeguard honest and accurate elections in all 254 counties across our great state, while continuing to support business owners by ensuring that government moves at the speed of Texas business, not the other way around. I also look forward to strengthening relationships with all of our international partners and telling the great story of Texas' economic prosperity to the world. I am grateful to Governor Abbott for nominating me to serve as Secretary of State, and will work every single day on behalf of the people of Texas."

Pursuant to the Texas Constitution, Article IV, Section 21, the Secretary of State must be confirmed by the Texas Senate to remain in office during the term of service of the Governor.

Property Tax Relief in the Texas Legislature

The Texas House and Senate have finally unveiled their proposals to lessen property owners' tax burden on the table — and there's a wide gulf between them when it comes to their big-ticket items.

Senate Republicans laid out a $16.5 billion package this week to expand tax benefits for homeowners as well as property tax exemptions and credits for businesses.

Senate lawmakers also want to triple the homestead exemption for seniors, which would raise the amount of that benefit from $10,000 to $30,000. The increase would save those homeowners another $227 each year. In all, senior homeowners wouldn't be taxed on the first $100,000 of their home value if both homestead exemption measures prevail.

Another bill would put $5.38 billion toward lowering school property taxes by pumping more state dollars into schools in addition to the $5.3 billion already set aside for that purpose in both chambers' budget proposals — a benefit that would apply to homeowners and businesses alike. That measure along with the homestead exemption bill cleared the Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday. Another measure by state Sen. Tan Parker, a Flower Mound Republican, calls for about $1.5 billion in business property tax cuts.

Texas House Speaker Dade Phelan's main property tax proposal in the House calls for $17.3 billion in cuts and a stricter cap on how much more of a home's value can be taxed each year.

Phelan's proposal — carried by House Ways & Means Chair Morgan Meyer, a Dallas Republican — calls for $12 billion in school property tax cuts on top of the $5.3 billion laid out in the House's budget proposal. If it passes, the owner of a $350,000 home would see total annual savings of nearly $1,300 over the next two years.

Texas has an "appraisal cap" on how much the value of a homeowner's main residence that can be taxed by school districts can rise each year. The House proposal — which has gained support from 57 other members of the House, including a handful of Democrats — would lower that cap from 10% to 5% for homeowners and expand the benefit to owners of commercial properties like restaurants and apartment complexes.

Property tax experts also say that raising the cap would make the property tax system more unfair and eventually create drastic inequities. That's a concern Glenn Hamer, the head of the Texas Association of Business, raised to the Ways & Means committee this week, testifying that the cap would "create an unequal distribution of taxes" among business owners and homeowners.
