Rainwater Harvesting and Turf Management Training

Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service's Healthy Lawns and Healthy Waters Program will host a residential rainwater harvesting and turf management training May 4 for Bell, Burnet, Coryell, Hamilton, Lampasas, Mills and Williamson counties. The free event will be held in person from 1-5pm at the AgriLife Extension office for Burnet County, 607 North Vandever, Suite 100, Burnet.

Registration is required and can be completed at <https://tx.ag/BurnetMay4>. Contact John Smith, AgriLife Extension program specialist, Bryan-College Station, at john.smith@ag.tamu.edu or 979-204-0573 with any questions. Attendees who RSVP to the event will receive updates and materials related to the training via email. Attendees will learn about the design and installation of residential rainwater harvesting systems as well as appropriate turf management and landscape species based on local conditions and other practices.

Participants can have their soil tested as part of the training. The soil sample bag and analysis are free to Healthy Lawns and Healthy Waters Program participants. Residents can pick up a soil sample bag with sampling instructions and the Urban and Homeowner Soil Sample Information Form from the AgriLife Extension offices in: Lampasas County, 409 South Pecan St., Suite 102, Lampasas. Bags containing residents' soil samples should be returned to the location where they were obtained prior to or by one week after the training. Soil samples may also be brought to the training, where soil bags will be provided to transfer the sample.

Samples will be grouped into one submission and sent to the AgriLife Extension Soil, Water and Forage Testing Lab in College Station for routine analysis.

The training will include information on how to understand soil test results and nutrient recommendations so residents can interpret results once the analysis is mailed to them.
