Constitutional Amendments this Election

Early voting for the two propositions began Monday and runs through May 3. The propositions will appear on the top of voters' ballots, above any local races they may be deciding. But many voters may not know what the propositions are asking them to support or oppose, given their highly technical wording. Here's a breakdown of what they mean.

What is Proposition 1?

What it means: Homeowners who are disabled or 65 years and older can qualify for having school district property taxes capped or frozen. But when lawmakers in 2019 passed legislation to offset rising property values with lower school district tax rates for all homeowners, those adjustments did not account for elderly and disabled homeowners whose property taxes were already frozen. Under Proposition 1, those homeowners could qualify for those additional reductions in 2023 if the measure passes, said state Sen. Paul Bettencourt, a Houston Republican who wrote the legislation calling for the constitutional amendment. The change would lower those homeowners' property taxes further, but would not eliminate their property tax cap. "The frozen value unfreezes and then refreezes lower each year," Bettencourt explained.

What is Proposition 2?

What it means: Currently, homeowners can subtract $25,000 from their home's value before school tax rates are levied. Proposition 2 would increase that deduction to $40,000 in value. The measure could save the average homeowner about $175 on their annual property tax bill, Bettencourt said, and would go into effect this year.

National Small Business Week

In 1963, after the proclamation from President John F. Kennedy, the first National Small Business Week was celebrated to honor the top entrepreneurs in every state with awards and special recognition. After this inaugural celebration, the week became an annual practice to encourage other small business owners and enable them to learn from the success stories of the top performers. After learning about how the top performers achieved their success, newer business owners can emulate the same practices to ensure their own success. This year, NSBW is May 1-7, 2022. The theme is "Building a Better America through Entrepreneurship". The events will highlight how America's entrepreneurs are rebuilding the American economy after the COVID-19 pandemic, and how important small businesses are to being the basis of a healthy economy.

There are 31 million small businesses in the U.S., which roughly make up around 99% of all the businesses in the country. Since 1776, when the U.S. gained its independence from Britain, people living in the U.S. have shared one dream: to live the American Dream and make their fortune.

For generations, small businesses across America have shaped and embodied our Nation's entrepreneurial spirit and driven our economy forward. Today, small businesses employ almost half of America's workforce and represent the heart and soul of countless communities. During National Small Business Week, we celebrate America's small businesses and their enormous contributions to American life and prosperity.

National Small Business Week is celebrated during the first week of May every year and takes place from May 1 to 7 this year. The aim of this week is to honor the entrepreneurs of our country, who have played their part in bringing new ideas to life and growing our economy.

In Texas, there are 2.8 million small businesses, and 99.8% of all Texas businesses are small businesses. Also in Texas, 8 in 10 entrepreneurs who start new businesses do so by choice, and 8 in ten of those are still in business after 1 year. The average number of jobs created by a Texas start up is 5.6 in their first year.
