A Bit of Yesteryear

The automobile has been a large part of the evolution of Lampasas beginning in the early 1900s. Although this photo wasn't a car show, it shows, the activity on the courthouse square circa 1929.

From the Texas State Historical Association: "For most Southerners the dominant theme of the 1920s was economic expansion. If electrical power was the basic regional builder in the Southeast, petroleum assumed that role in the Southwest—Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana. Oil diversified the region's economy, which was previously based on agriculture and timber, and fueled the burgeoning automobile industry in the United States. By 1929 there was an automobile for every 4.3 Texans".

The Lampasas Heritage Foundation will be hosting the Rockin' Rides and Smokin' Swing Car Show on Spring Ho Sunday this year.

El Niño Weather Pattern

Forecasters have high confidence in an upcoming El Niño not only because of the rapidly changing tropical Pacific Ocean conditions but also because of the strong agreement from the latest computer model predictions. The predicted shift to El Niño conditions means that the polar jet stream shifts south, bringing warmer-than-average conditions to our northern states. A cooler and wetter pattern develops for the southern portion of the U.S., including a majority of Texas.

Texas could experience more moisture and rainfall. According to Dr. Mark Wentzel, a hydrologist at the Texas Water Development Board, "the months of April, May, and June historically bring a lot of rainfall to our state. And they're very important for us in terms of avoiding drought. If we can get some normal to above-normal rainfall during those months, that can help us stay out of drought during the coming summer months." With El Niño, cooler and wetter conditions are likely in fall and early winter.
