Lometa ISD Graduation

Abigail Stewart

Ready or not, graduation night is coming and their final night as Lometa ISD students is ending. On May 20th, Lometa ISD sends off the seniors of the Class of 2022 to begin their futures.

Family and friends are welcome to gather and celebrate the accomplished seniors in the new Lometa High School Gym. One of the larger classes of Lometa, a whole 23 students, will show off their school pride by wearing their maroon robes and gold stoles. This bittersweet moment will start off with an invocation followed by inspiring speeches from the Valedictorian and Salutatorian. Diplomas and special awards are to be received by the graduates, including scholarships and special recognitions. Many of these seniors competed at state levels, broke records, and went above and beyond their abilities to represent Lometa's name.

Now jobs, trade schools, military and colleges await these bright young adults. Come and help these students celebrate this once in a lifetime accomplishment.

The Burn Ban is in effect!

Wildfire Danger

The Texas A & M Forest Service shares that there is potential for large wildfires to occur in the Western/Eastern Hill Country and Rolling Plains through Friday including areas near Childress, Vernon, Abilene, Brownwood, Lampasas, San Angelo, Ozona and Fredericksburg.

Yesterday, Texas A&M Forest Service fire resources responded to four wildfires that burned 10,610 acres across the state. Crews also continued work on carryover fires and responded to two fires that rekindled and moved across containment lines.

Several wildfires exhibited extreme fire behavior caused by dry live and dead vegetation, increased wind speeds and triple digit temperatures. Fire crews experienced high resistance to control with active crown fire in juniper and mesquite vegetation, where the fire transitions from the surface to the canopy.

Very hot temperatures and mostly dry conditions during the week will decrease live and dead fuel moistures in vegetation through Friday for much of the state. A general trend of increasing wildfire activity is likely for Central, East and South Texas.

By the weekend, a pattern change is expected when a forecast cold front moves through the state. As a result, a seasonable cool and moist fire environment will limit potential for wildfire activity on Saturday and Sunday.

"Minimal rainfall, hot and dry conditions and an intensifying drought continue to support wildfire activity across the state," said Wes Moorehead, Texas A&M Forest Service Fire Chief. "Due to conditions, these wildfires are requiring more time and resources to contain. Texas A&M Forest Service continues to support local fire departments and has situated additional resources to the areas of concern.

Happy Birthday

Texas Property Tax

(Texas Association of Broadcasters) The Senate Finance Committee next week is taking up one of two interim charges issued by Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick, R-Houston, to examine ways to reduce Texans' property tax burden as lawmakers prepare for the 2023 legislative session starting in January.

The hearings come as soaring property appraisals are shocking owners, though legislative changes approved in 2019 are upending the typical impact on actual property taxes that people and businesses have to pay.

Sen. Jane Nelson, R-Flower Mound, has scheduled a meeting for Monday, May 23, at 10AM to examine how lawmakers might be able to use or dedicate state revenues in excess of the state spending limit to eliminate the school district maintenance and operations property tax, the biggest portion of the costliest property tax that Texans pay in addition to county, city and special district property taxes.

Despite the anticipated $24 billion budget surplus that state money managers project will be available in January, the state's spending limit will prohibit lawmakers from utilizing much of the surplus to lower property tax burdens or address other pressing needs without some sort of action by lawmakers or voters.

One study Senate Finance Committee members will undertake is examining whether adjustments to existing tax exemptions are merited because of inflation or other factors.

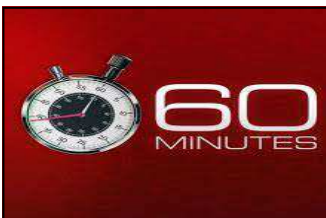

While soaring increases in property values have shocked taxpayers, state tax experts caution that appraisals are only half of the tax equation, with the other half being the tax rates to which those values are subjected.

Because of two major reforms lawmakers adopted in 2019 affecting school finance and local government budgeting practices, Texans are seeing some degree of relief from the typical upswing in tax payments.

"Though few tax bills are actually shrinking, the spiraling growth of property taxes of the past few decades has been abated," according to the Texas Taxpayers and Research Association. (TTARA)

TTARA notes that in 2021, Texas property taxes were a record $73 billion, but would have been $79 billion had the 2019 legislation not been enacted.

The tax policy changes require voters to be more engaged with their local governments, particularly school districts, as voter approval is required to exceed certain tax revenue thresholds when expenses outpace the growth in revenue from escalating property valuations
