Ain't life wonderful!

Ronnie Witcher

We note the passing of Harold Harton this week.

As I've watched the parade of personalities that have passed through the life of Lampasas over many years, it occurs to me that Harold was one of the more interesting.

My early memories were of Harold the barber. His shop on Key Avenue was not only a spot where men and boys were groomed, but also where the conversation ranged from comic to noble, and was always active.

Later, I noticed that Harold became recognized as a gunsmith with considerable skill, then his knack for the technical seemed to bring him into photography and he had a career there for some years. He wrote very good articles for the local paper for a time, as well as presenting many of their best photos. Finally, Harold was a very successful realtor in his final career.

Oh yes, in a matter of days, we'll see the gathering of local musicians at the Brook Park amphitheatre for the annual Hayloft Party during Spring Ho. Harold Harton, as a young boy with a small tenor guitar, was at the first Hayloft Party back in the late '40s. He had a skill and a love for music all of his life. From that, and so many other tracks he laid down in Lampasas soil, we can see something of the character of Harold Harton.

He was fascinated with the great smorgasbord of life, and tasted as much of it as he could.

Here's hoping we all take as big a bite of life as we can before it's all over. We're rootin' for ya. RW

Notice of Passing

Harold Windell Harton, Sr., 94, of Lampasas passed on Tuesday at his home in Lampasas. Visitation will be held on Thursday, June 30 from 6-8pm at Sneed-Carnley Funeral Chapel. Services will be held at First Baptist Church on Friday, July 1, at 2pm. Interment will be private at a later date.

Beware of Climbing Electric Bills

You might want to sit down when you open your electric bill this summer. Rates are high - and expected to get higher.

Summer months in Texas traditionally equal higher electric bills, but experts said this year will bring extra sticker shock if you aren't locked into a contract that goes through the summer. "For some people, it's probably up 50% to 70%," said Bruce Bullock, Director of the Maguire Energy Institute at SMU. "If you are paying $100, you're probably going to be paying $150, $170."

Bullock said Texas' deregulated electricity market has typically meant low commodity prices. "Now we are in an environment - and have been really for the almost the past year - where commodity prices are rising," he said.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics shows electricity costs in DFW as having increased by 28.2 percent over the last year, compared to a national average of 11 percent. So how can you keep your bill from sky-rocketing? Electrician PJ Waites said start with your lights.

"I'd say start going to LED lighting," he said. "I've had some customers say it almost cut their bill in half." He also said to turn your thermostat up, especially at night and when you're not home.

"At this point, just hold on as best as you can this summer, because I think it is going to be a tough one from a financial standpoint."
