CDC Relaxing Covid-19 Guidelines

According to a story by the Associated Press, the nation's top public health agency relaxed its COVID-19 guidelines Thursday, dropping the recommendation that Americans quarantine themselves if they come into close contact with an infected person.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention also said people no longer need to stay at least 6 feet away from others.

The changes, which come more than 2 1/2 years after the start of the pandemic, are driven by a recognition that an estimated 95% of Americans 16 and older have acquired some level of immunity, either from being vaccinated or infected, agency officials said.

"The current conditions of this pandemic are very different from those of the last two years," said the CDC's Greta Massetti, an author of the guidelines.

Many places around the country long ago abandoned social distancing and other once-common precautions, but some of the changes could be particularly important for schools, which resume classes this month in many parts of the country.

Perhaps the biggest education-related change is the end of the recommendation that schools do routine daily testing, although that practice can be reinstated in certain situations during a surge in infections, officials said. (cont'd on back)

(cont'd from front) The CDC also dropped a "test-to-stay" recommendation, which said students exposed to COVID-19 could regularly test — instead of quarantining at home — to keep attending school. With no quarantine recommendation anymore, the testing option disappeared too.

Masks continue to be recommended only in areas where community transmission is deemed high, or if a person is considered at high risk of severe illness.

School districts across the U.S. have scaled back their COVID-19 precautions in recent weeks even before the latest guidance was issued. Some have promised a return to pre-pandemic schooling. Masks will be optional in most districts when classes resume this fall, and some of the nation's largest districts have dialed back or eliminated COVID-19 testing requirements.

Public schools in Los Angeles are ending weekly COVID-19 tests, instead making at-home tests available to families, the district announced last week. Schools in North Carolina's Wake County also dropped weekly testing.

Some others have moved away from test-to-stay programs that became unmanageable during surges of the omicron variant last school year.

Sports

Badger Tennis

The Badger Tennis team Traveled to Killeen High Friday for its first match of the season. This year Killeen High is 5A. We had very long doubles matches today and pulled most of them out.

James Vasquez / Clayton Shaw won in a back and forth match in the tie breaker, good win for them

Allison Valdez / Amore Zapata also won in tie breaker That gave us a 6-1 lead after doubles.

Loretta Hodges / Sydney Unger and Talan Clements / Caroline White won in extra matches.

I thought we were in good shape to win 4 more matches but it got closer than we wanted.

Vasquez came off with a loss, as did Shaw, Zapata and Valdez and before we new it, it was 6-5.

Venegas and Vanhook came off with wins. Now 8-5.

Then Miles lost, now 8-6

Then Champion won 9-6

and White won 10-6 to give us the win.

Rogers and Breuer finished with two more wins.

Giving us a 12-6 victory for the evening.

We go to Cove Tuesday and play Pflugerville High on Friday at home
