Blue Alert Issued

A statewide Blue Alert was issued Monday night after a Clay County sheriff's deputy was shot during an attempted traffic stop Monday night southeast of Wichita Falls.

Clay County Sheriff Jeffrey Lyde said on Facebook Monday night that Deputy Brent Chitwood was shot in the chest during an attempted traffic stop at the Jolly Truck Stop.

Chitwood was hit in his bulletproof vest and is expected to be OK. Lyde said he was able to return fire multiple times but it's not clear if he hit the shooter.

The gunman, who drove away in a white Cadillac four-door sedan that is believed to have a stolen Texas plate (FXJ 1334), is at large and is considered armed and dangerous.pic

Refugees in Texas

Fort Bliss in El Paso will be the destination for potentially thousands of Afghan refugees, Pentagon officials said Monday during a press conference to address the United States' withdrawal from Afghanistan.

"As we prepare for even more arrivals, [U.S. Northern Command] and the U.S. Army are working to create additional capacity to support refugee relocation in the U.S., including temporary sights under assessment at Fort Bliss, Texas, and Camp McCoy, Wisconsin," Department of Defense official Gary Reed said.

"There may be other sites identified if services are needed, additional capacity is needed," he added. "At this point we're looking to establish 20 [thousand] to 22,000 spaces. We can expand if we need to."

Afghanistan's government collapsed in recent days amid the withdrawal of American troops after nearly 20 years in the country. The Taliban has taken control of Kabul, Afghanistan's capital city, which led to a crush of civilians at the Kabul airport desperate to leave the country on Monday.

While many of the refugees will be housed at the Fort Bliss military base, others could be settled throughout Texas in Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston, the Refugee Services of Texas said in a statement to KXAN-TV.
