Corix Water Line Break

This is a courtesy message from Corix Utilities Texas, your local water provider for the Lometa community at 1-877-718-4396.

Operations is currently working to repair a twelve inch main line break. Due to drop in pressure, once service is restored, your system is will be under a precautionary boil water advisory. The advisory will remain in effect until we have confirmed that samples show that there is no contamination.

To ensure destruction of all harmful bacteria and other microbes, water for drinking, cooking, and making ice should be boiled prior to use. The water should be brought to a vigorous, rolling boil and then boiled for two minutes. In lieu of boiling, you may purchase bottled water or obtain water from some other suitable source. We will contact you again once the water test results are received and the boil water notice is lifted. We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause and appreciate your patience as we work to provide you with a quality water supply that is reliable. Should you have any questions or concerns, please contact our Customer Service Department at 1-877-718-4396

USDA Funding for High Speed Internet

A federal program is working to provide greater connectivity to hundreds of homes, businesses and farms in rural areas within San Saba and Lampasas counties.

"Because of the pandemic, we saw where we had big pockets of this country that are not connected to internet," said Lillian Salerno, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Development State Director for Texas. One of those pockets is rural Central Texas.

According to the State Comptroller's Office, more than two-million Texas households don't have access to high speed internet.

"1: rural America gets left out of things, 2: it's not centralized so it's more expensive in some places to put internet, especially in places like Central Texas that have huge granite blocks and rough terrain," said Salerno. (cont'd on back)

Out in the county there were civil matters, livestock/animal issues, a reported assault, a suicidal person, and a reported fraud. Deputies went into Cove on a mental health call, a fish & game call, and burglary in progress.

(cont'd from front) "That's why we're so committed for Texas, there's somewhere between 25 and 30 percent of Texans that don't have access to internet, it's just unacceptable."

Part of that commitment is the USDA's funding for High-Speed Internet Access in Rural Central Texas.

This month, the agency announced a multi-million dollar grant for communities in San Saba and Lampasas counties through Central Texas Telephone Cooperative, Inc.

The almost $10,000,000 award will build a fiber network to bring high-speed internet to almost 650 people, 20 businesses and 150 farms.

Coryell County Broadband Evaluation

Coryell County has engaged Foresite Group to complete a Broadband Evaluation project. The goal of the project is to evaluate the current broadband infrastructure within Coryell County, identify the gaps, and provide solutions and recommendations that can be implemented. The community outreach phase is currently ongoing and Coryell County residents' participation is integral in determining where the need for broadband is greatest. Support this project as you are able by taking the survey here:

Fire Season May be Slowing

The Texas A&M Forest Service knew they would have a tough summer since back in April. They just didn't know how tough. Spokesman Kiley Moran said some crews have been out three weeks at a time and only had a few days to rest before their next assignment.

"It's been months of long hours. Lots of fires. Lots of people going in and out our office from different states and different areas. We've had all kinds of equipment between dozers and engines staying here, or checking in here, and then going all over the state," Moran said.

Central Texas got less than an inch of rain on Monday, but it was enough to leave puddles in the parking lot and give the forest service a slower day at work. More importantly, it's the first sign that the current fire season could be reaching a stopping point.

One day of rain is, of course, not enough to reduce the fire risk, but Moran said several days of rain, and of high humidity, would be enough slow the fire season down. "When it all comes at once, in floods, that's not the best kind of rainfall, for getting your fire danger out. It's those days stretched out will a little bit of rain everyday," Moran said. Having several days with high humidity and low wind would also help reduce the fire danger.

Moran said the Forest Service will have to wait and see how the rest of the week goes, but he is hopeful that the fires, and the hours of work, will eventually die down.

"It's a big relief for everyone. (The fires) are hard on a lot of people, hard on the families, so its good to see the rain and know that we are going to spend some time with our family soon," Moran said.

Over the weekend, Texas A & M Forestry Service responded to 8 fires for 534 acres burned.
