Republicans Outpacing Democrats in Funding

Republicans outraised Democrats over the summer in all three congressional races in South Texas that the national parties are contesting, according to new campaign-finance reports.

The three GOP nominees hauled in a combined $4.3 million over the past three months, while their Democratic opponents collected $2.4 million together. Two of the Democrats — incumbents Henry Cuellar and Vicente Gonzalez — still ended the period with more on cash on hand than their challengers, though Gonzalez had only a slight edge.

But the large GOP fundraising shows how intent Republicans are on taking over the predominantly Hispanic region after President Joe Biden underperformed there in 2020. They are targeting Cuellar's 28th District, which includes Laredo in a long stretch of the border up through San Antonio; the 15th District, which is an open seat and runs in a thin line from McAllen up to east of San Antonio; and the 34th District in the Rio Grand Valley, where Gonzalez is running for reelection against U.S. Rep. Mayra Flores, R-Los Indios, who captured the seat in a June special election. Winning the seats could help the GOP retake the U.S. House, but would also provide a major psychological win for a party intensely focused on border policy and gaining ground with Hispanic voters.

All three Republican nominees raised over $1 million, and Cuellar's challenger, Cassy Garcia, had the largest haul — $1.7 million. The biggest disparity, however, was in the 34th District, where Flores more than tripled Gonzalez's fundraising, $1.6 million to $497,000.

Cuellar has the biggest cash-on-hand lead, with $836,000 in reserves as of Sept. 30 compared to $384,000 for Garcia. While she posted the biggest fundraising number, she spent through most of it during the period. (cont'd on back)

Fugitive Placed on Texas Most Wanted List

CORYELL COUNTY, Texas — Escaped Coryell County inmate Brandon Hogan has been placed on the Texas Most Wanted Fugitives list, after authorities have been searching for him for nearly two and a half weeks. Coryell County Sheriff Scott Williams gave a second update on the situation during a news conference. This conference revealed that not only had Hogan been placed on the Most Wanted list, there is now a $5,000 reward for his capture.

Williams began the conference by saying that Brandon Hogan has not yet been caught, and is still at large. He said that the search has been widened, and that authorities have run down hundreds of leads, and are continuing to do so. Williams once again encouraged citizens to send in any tips that they may have, whether proven or not. He said any information helps, and the Sheriff's Office will sort out what is valid and what is not.

Williams also reiterated that Hogan should not be approached if seen. Williams believes Hogan to be very dangerous, and believes that he is getting desperate now as well. Williams told citizens to stay away from Hogan if they see him and immediately contact the office at 254-865-7201.

Once again, Williams asserted his resolve to capture Hogan, saying that thousands of people are looking for him, and will not stop looking until he is found and returned to jail.

The stand was then turned over to Brian Washko, a Sergeant in the Highway Patrol of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Washko was the one who stated that Brandon Hogan has been added to the Texas Most Wanted Fugitives List. In addition to the department's efforts, they will also be offering a cash reward of $5,000 to anyone who gives information that leads to Hogan's arrest.

Tips can be made through the Texas Crime Stoppers website, and by calling 1-800-252-8477. They can also be made through the Texas Most Wanted website, or the DPS mobile app. All tips are anonymous through each of these sources.

Sheriff Williams added to this by saying that the overall bounty from all sources is now up to $7,500. He went on to thank all of the many law enforcement agencies who have been helping with the search.
