Sales Tax Rebates

Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar announced November 10th he will send cities, counties, transit systems and special purpose taxing districts 1.07 billion dollars in local sales tax allocations for October. These allocations are based on sales made in September by businesses.

In our area, Evant in Hamilton County saw their rebate check increase by 42.79% over the same period last year, with a $5824.02 rebate. The City of Hamilton saw a 17.04% increase over the same period last year in their rebate check of $78,685.57.

In Lampasas County, Lampasas showed there was a 21.43% increase in their rebate of $242,908.23 Lometa shows an increase of 7.58% with a rebate check for $8320.87. Kempner received a rebate for $13,615.55, a 27.31% increase from last year.

Lometa ISD School Board Meeting

The Lometa ISD will be holding a regular meeting of the Board of Trustees on November 18th at 6:30pm in the Lometa School Library. The agenda includes; community input, consideration of purchase of an activity van, opening and consideration of proposals for asbestos abatement and demolition of school house at North end of 100 N. 8th St., consideration and review of TASB Policy update 118, administrative reports, consideration to amend list of employees approved for the Guardian program, and staff resignations

Coronavirus Update

Statewide, according to the DSHS, there were 3,386 new and 915 probable new cases on November 16th, along with 89 deaths. There were also 2,741 Texans in the hospital with Covid-19. Locally, the DSHS dashboard for cases shows 2 new confirmed cases in Lampasas County on November 16th, and 13 confirmed cases in the last 14 days. The state estimates Lampasas County to have 24 active cases at this time.

Pfizer Testing Covid-19 Pill

Pfizer asked U.S. regulators Tuesday to authorize its experimental pill for COVID-19, setting the stage for a likely launch this winter of a promising treatment that can be taken at home. The company's filing comes as new infections are rising once again in the United States, driven mainly by hot spots in states where colder weather is driving more Americans indoors.

Pfizer's pill has been shown to significantly cut the rate of hospitalizations and deaths among people with coronavirus infections. The Food and Drug Administration is already reviewing a competing pill from Merck and several smaller drugmakers are also expected to seek authorization for their own antiviral pills in the coming months.

Pfizer wants the drug available for adults who have mild-to-moderate COVID-19 infections and are at risk of becoming seriously ill. That's similar to how other drugs are currently used to treat the disease. But all FDA-authorized COVID-19 treatments require an IV or injection given by a health professional at a hospital or clinic. Some experts predict COVID-19 treatments eventually will be combined to better protect against the worst effects of the virus.

Pfizer reported earlier this month that its pill cut hospitalizations and deaths by 89% among high-risk adults who had early symptoms of COVID-19. The company studied its pill in people who were unvaccinated and faced the worst risks from the virus due to age or health problems, such as obesity.

Pfizer's drug is part of a decades-old family of antiviral drugs known as protease inhibitors, which revolutionized the treatment of HIV and hepatitis C. The drugs block a key enzyme which viruses need to multiply in the human body. That's different than the Merck pill, which causes tiny mutations in the coronavirus until the point that it can't reproduce itself.

The U.S. has approved one other antiviral drug for COVID-19, remdesivir, and authorized three antibody therapies that help the immune system fight the virus. But they usually have to be given via time-consuming infusions by health professionals, and limited supplies were strained by the last surge of the delta variant.

The U.S. government has already committed to purchasing Merck's pill. Federal authorities were in negotiations with Pfizer to buy
